What's the Meaning of "Detoxifying" in TCVM?

In TCVM, detoxifying is called "Jie Du". Jie means "anti" and Du refers to poison or toxin. The term "detoxifying" or "Jie Du" is often combined with "clearing Heat (Qing Re)". Extreme Heat (Re Ji) and Heat Toxin (Re Du) are similar TCVM terminologies. Both of them are Excess Heat. Extreme Heat is 100% pure excessive Heat (red tongue, fast/strong pulse, yellow coating, high fever) and Heat Toxin refers to the infectious or epidemic Excess Heat, such as flu, or other viral infections. Because of their difference, two separate herbal categories are designed for these conditions:

- 1) The herbs to clear Heat and drain Fire (Qing Re Xie Huo) are used for Extreme Heat. Individual herbs include Gypsum Shi Gao and Anemarrhena Zhi Mu to clear Heat and drain Fire.
- 2) The herbs to clear Heat and detoxify (Qing Re Jie Du) are used for Heat Toxin (infectious Excess Heat). Individual herbs include Lonicera Jim Yin Hua and Forsythia Lian Qiao. Herbal formulas include Yin Qiao San. Their actions are to clear Heat and detoxify.

Acupuncture Techniques, Integrative Clinical Case Examples, Clinical Application of Chinese Herbal Medicine

Integrative Veterinary Medicine provides a clinically oriented, evidence-based guide to effectively integrating complementary and conventional therapies into veterinary practice. Covering acupuncture, manual therapies, botanical and herbal medicine, integrative nutrition, and physical rehabilitation, the book draws information on these modalities into a single resource. It is an essential reference for any veterinary practitioner wishing to use integrative techniques in their practices, as well as veterinary students, academics and researchers involved in programs of study related to integrative veterinary medicine.
